DIG MOB THREATENS PATERSON SLAYER; 1 MAN DEAD, 1 DYING

"I Am Tracy, the Outlaw," Said Negro Slayer of Isaac Wollenberg When He Drew His Revolver and Commanded His Victim to Yield.

Posse of 1,000 Men Started Out to Capture Him and Succeeded at Farm House Where He Had Made Application for Employment.

Arthur Elsker, the negro who early to-day shot and killed Isaac Wollenberg, a storekeeper at No. 302 Main street, Paterson, N. J., and in the resultant chase sent a bullet through the jaw of William J. Kessel, was captured this afternoon at a farm-house in the Peekskill hills, about three miles northwest of Paterson. A posse of 1,000 men had been hunting for him all day with bloodhounds.

Many threats of lynching were made by the angry crowd. Greater excitement prevailed in Paterson than at any time since the silk riots. Mill hands knocked off work at noon and an enormous crowd gathered around the jail and police station.

Doctors who attended Kessel said that he probably would not survive his injuries.

About noon the negro applied at the place for a job. A hired man, who had been to town and heard the story of the killing, informed the farmer of what had happened and urged him to hire the stranger, in the probability that he might be the murderer.

The farmer followed the suggestion, and the hired man hurried to a telephone and informed the Paterson police of the fact that a negro answering the description of Wollenberg's slayer was there.

Within an hour the posse, amounting virtually to a mob, arrived. It was led by Officers Ryan and Sautter in plain clothes.

The negro was caught before he had a chance to escape. He had thrown away the revolver he used, and protested in half-hearted manner that he was innocent.

The mob, satisfied of the guilt of the captive, tried to get at him and wreak a summary vengeance. The only thing which saved him from meeting a quick fate, perhaps, was the fact that the mob did not have a rope and none was obtainable.

The prisoner gave him name as Arthur Elsker and said his home was in Newark. Securely shackled, he was taken back to town and hurried to Police Headquarters, where he was given the "third degree." A clamoring crowd followed and gathered outside headquarters making an angry demonstration.

Isaac Wollenberg, one of the most prominent and popular merchants in Paterson, was the negro's victim. In the pursuit the fugitive shot William J. Kessel, a Paterson ice dealer, in the face. Kessel was not seriously injured.

SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN A PERFORMER.

The negro was described by Wollenberg as a mulatto, about five feet six inches in height and of slim build. It is supposed that he was a member of a colored company of performers giving a show called "The Sunny South," at the carnival in Paterson last week for the benefit of a local hospital.

HIGHBALL WINS, WITH ODOM UP

Popular Rider Breaks His Hoodoo, Scoring First Victory in 22 Days, and the Crowd Cheers Him.

THIS A FAVORITES' DAY AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY.

Ingold, Beldame, Lavator, Highball and Hot Shot. Well-Played Choices, Get Home in Front.

THE WINNERS.

SECOND RACE—Beldame (7 to 20) 1, Lux Casta (9 to 1) 2, Mortensia 3.

FIFTH RACE—Hot Shot (11 to 10) 1, Torchello (8 to 1) 2, Dandelion 3.

SIXTH RACE—Tramator (10 to 1) 1, Virgo (8 to 5) 2, Little Buttercup 3.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SHEEPSHEAD BAY, June 30.—George Odom rode a winner at Sheepshead Bay this afternoon. That this superb rider should have gone twenty-two days without having a winning mount seems incredible. His win, therefore, is noteworthy. Odom, with the mount on Lavator, won the Spinifit Stakes and Highball made all the running.

The betting was peculiar. Highball opened at 7 to 10 and went back to 8 to 5. Knight Errant was heavily played and so was Lavator, and this might have caused Highball's price to go up. Highball won with ridiculous ease. He went to the front at the start and stayed there all the way, winning by lengths from Ostrich, an outsider, who beat Thistle Heather a head.

The crowd cheered Odom for at least five minutes after he returned to the stand with Highball, appreciating the fact that the popular rider had broken his hoodoo.

Favorites were successful all day. Ingold, at the generous price of 4 to 1, took the first, and Beldame, at odds on, galloped away in the record time of 1:13. Lavator was second to the last, and Odom, who was second to the last, won the Steeplechase with ease, and Highball's victory was followed by a win by Hot Shot at 6 to 5.

The weather was cool and pleasant and the attendance good. The track was fast.

Ingold Runs in Record Time.

Ingold was the favorite in the opening half-mile race, and won through, compelling to run in the record time of 1:13. Ingold was second to the last, and Odom, who was second to the last, won the Steeplechase with ease, and Highball's victory was followed by a win by Hot Shot at 6 to 5.

Nothing to It but Beldame.

Beldame, a prohibitive favorite in the second race, won through, compelling to run in the record time of 1:13. Ingold was second to the last, and Odom, who was second to the last, won the Steeplechase with ease, and Highball's victory was followed by a win by Hot Shot at 6 to 5.

Lavator Won in a Gallop.

In the Steeplechase Royale made the early pace, but at the end of a mile, Lavator and Odom were well in front, and ran like a team to the last jump, where Lavator drew away and won in a gallop by ten lengths. Royale and Odom did the race well, but the latter was remounted and finished third.

Stake Easy for Highball.

In the Spinifit Highball opened up a 7 to 10 chance, but a plunge on Knight Errant drove his price up to 8 to 5. It looked then as if there was something wrong. Joe Yeager plunged on Regular, backing it from 15 to 1 down to 7 to 1. Highball dispelled all suspicions as to his condition by going to the front at the start, making all the running and winning easily by four lengths from Ostrich, who was a head in front of Thistle Heather.

Hot Shot Won in Stretch.

Torchello cut out the pace to the stretch, followed by Dandelion and Jerry. Torchello looked to have the race in hand at the turning pole, but on the last sixteenth Hot Shot came with a race and Regular, who was off head, had no chance against the latter.

Good Thing Wins Last.

Tramator went to the front at the start, made all the running and won by half a length from Virgo, who was a neck in front of Little Buttercup.

TAMMANY OUT SQUARELY FOR GROVER CLEVELAND

Leader Murphy Declares that the Former President Is the Strongest Candidate that Can Be Named for the Presidency by the Democratic Party.

Leader Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, came out flat-footed for Grover Cleveland for President to-day. He said that Grover Cleveland is the strongest candidate in the Democratic party, and that New Jersey would in all probability be the first at the convention to break the Parker line in favor of Cleveland.

"In making this statement," said the Tammany leader, "I do so after a great deal of reflection. The whole field has been gone over very thoroughly and investigated carefully with the result that it is the opinion of a large number of prominent Democrats that Mr. Cleveland is the man to head the Democratic ticket, and the man who can win for the Democratic party this year."

"But is not Tammany instructed for Parker in view of the action at the State Convention?" was asked.

"I am instructed for Parker, but that does not mean that every ballot will see the Parker sentiment predominating," answered the leader. "If New Jersey is first to break the line I am quite certain that the other States will follow."

"There is sentiment in politics as well as practice, and when the name of Grover Cleveland goes before the convention there may be an entirely new story to tell."

"Can you name one State that is instructed for Cleveland?" was next asked.

"That is quite true," answered the Tammany leader, "but the fact remains that there are many States which are not instructed at all and these are open to conviction."

"My position in this matter is wholly consistent. I have never receded from the position that Mr. Cleveland is the strongest possible candidate in the country. He is the man we can win with, and that is the sort of a candidate we want this above any other year."

"I have never criticized Judge Parker, but I did criticize the action of the Convention in sending from this State an instructed delegation. The same objection would have applied had an effort been made to instruct for Cleveland at the State Convention. Judge Parker is a good man, a worthy man, but we cannot win with Judge Parker. That is my opinion."

TRENTON, N. J., June 30.—Charles H. Gallagher, delegate to St. Louis and one of the leaders of this city, says he knows nothing of any arrangement to break for Cleveland, and added: "I do know a large majority of the delegates favor the nomination of the former President."

"I have all along favored Judge Grey, having in mind the determination of Cleveland not to accept the nomination. If Cleveland will accept I shall certainly vote for him. He is a resident of my own State and county; besides, I have always thought he was the strongest man the Democrats could nominate."

four and one-half furlongs.—Miss Mer, 108 (Croghan), 4 to 5 and out; won; Lamp Light, 102 (Reichner), 3 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Fifi, 108 (Michaels), 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, third. Time—1:25.3-4.

ROUGH WATER CAUSES POSTPONEMENT OF HARVARD-YALE RACE

Conditions at New London Such that Varsity Event Is Delayed and There Is Talk of Calling It Off Until Tomorrow.

Freshmen Eight-Oared Race Resulted in a Victory for the Yale Youngsters, Who Beat Harvards in Nip-and-Tuck Struggle.

(Special to The Evening World.)
NEW LONDON, June 30.—The condition of the water late this afternoon was such that it was announced that the Yale-Harvard Varsity race would not be attempted until very late, and there were some indications that it would be postponed until to-morrow.

At 4 o'clock a fresh southerly wind was blowing up the course and the surface of the river was considerably rougher than during the morning. A thick haze hung over the river. Under these conditions the outlook for the Varsity race on schedule time was not favorable.

The steward at Yale's quarters ordered another day's supplies and all arrangements were made for the crews to spend another night on the river.

The observation trains did not leave the city for the race course up to 4 o'clock, word having been received from the quarters that no race would be held. The prospects for a race at that hour were considered poor.

HARVARD FRESHMEN MADE A GALLANT FIGHT.
NEW LONDON, Conn., June 30.—In one of the most thrilling races ever rowed on the Thames, the Yale freshmen won from Harvard to-day by half length. From the boom of the signal start until they crossed the two-mile mark at the Navy-Yard both crews fought with every ounce of muscle, nerve and nerve in them.

They got away together, bow to bow. Then after the first dozen strokes Harvard with stroke Farley drawing every pound of weight in his great frame on his oar, jerked his boat for a quarter of length. Then as the boats neared the half mile Yale, who was rowing a steady, concentrated stroke, out down its rivals' advantage and pulled up to Harvard's bow again.

From then on till the mile point was reached the thousands of spectators on the observation train from the opposite side of the river could not tell the positions so close were the two crews to either.

As they drew into the half mile the Crimson crew made another spurt, pulling away almost to half a length. They did not hold this overreach, however, for more than fifty strokes. Yale, pulling the same consistent stroke, out down the lead and took Harvard on the bow by a foot.

Yale Rowed Steadily.
Yale was rowing steadily and evenly with every bit of the youngsters' energy and strength in each stroke. Harvard had been pulling the beautiful, mechanical Cornell stroke, except for an occasional spurt, in which they seemed to lose sight of Coach Osborn's training.

As they neared the finish mark as the river turns slightly, none of the observers from the two trains on either side of the river could distinguish who was leader, because of the angle of the boat.

As the last quarter mile was being cut down, both crews, who had been striking conservatively between 33 and 35, hit it up to 37. Then, with every nerve distended and every muscle strained to the utmost, they battled gloriously with their own blades to the very end. Yale in the last 50 feet making a final brilliant spurt, in which she outdistanced the Cambridge oarsmen.

Once Obscured Finish Line.
Even the spectators on either side of the river did not know who was the winner until it was announced from the judges' boat. The wind and rain and the haze on the river partially obscured the finish line at the Navy Yard. Official time: Yale, 19:20; Harvard, 19:30.1-2.

The Harvard freshmen crew was on the starting line fully forty minutes before the signal was given to start. The stakeboat that was holding the Harvard shell dragged her anchor and drifted down stream from the starting line, compelling the crew to paddle back at least a half dozen times, fully fifteen minutes before the Yale shell arrived at the starting line.

Trouble Getting to the Start.
The Harvard men when they started from Red Top were in perfect physical condition, paddled down slowly and were compelled to stop at various short intervals because of the number of river steamers and pleasure yachts running down stream from Norwich and giving the shells a wash that compelled the men to rest on their oars.

This was repeated all the way down and then the Crimson crew had the heartrending delay due to the difficulty of the big boats' anchors.

Yale crew went down late, avoided all the river craft and arrived at the stake boat fresh, in fact they had no difficulty or inconvenience before they got away.

The freshmen race was rowed from the New London draw-bridge to the Navy-Yard, Harvard selecting the east course. In the four-oared race from the Navy-Yard to Gales Ferry Harvard picked the west course, and the west also in the Varsity race. The Cambridge captain having won the toss in all three events, had his own choice of positions.

Jean Buckley, the once famous oarsman and the Boston expert, who has been following the two college crews since they went to their respective quarters at Red Top and Gales Ferry, declares that the Yale crew this year is composed of eight of the greatest boat-pullers that ever turned a college oar. He is also of the opinion that Harvard can make but a poor showing against this crew, notwithstanding their use of the Cornell stroke. He is of the opinion that had they stuck to the stroke they have used for the past few years
